My Dream

This is My Dream as I see it. I understand that as the days go by it might change somewhat or even a lot based on new information I obtain and changes in my life that are necessary for the maturing of my walk, the vision and/or the dream. Sometimes the journey of life takes different paths and turns, but this doesn't mean that I won't get to my destination, it just means there are things I must learn along the way, and people I need to meet who can help me and whom I can help. My dream is not just about me, but to also help those who I meet in passing and those who will become a part of my life along the way. My dream is only a part of the Lord's plan for His Kingdom to be built. He can make the necessary changes to my journey along the way, because He sees the whole plan and knows the best paths for me to take and the special people He wants to connect me with. I entrust this dream to Him, that by His grace I'll be able to cross the finish line in my life and see Him welcome me into His Kingdom upon my life's completion. 'Well done, my good and faithful servant.'"

I 'm not in this alone! If I find myself in a situation where I am a danger to myself, I will reach out to those around me to help me through this temporary storm. I will overcome!
